

The tree tops grazed your flapping wings. In front of you, was a gold coin. You scooped it up in your beak. Another one appeared, you collected it too.

Plop...plop...plop. Fat rain drops began to fall. There were dark clouds rolling towards you. You swooped down to perch on a lower branch, where the leaves covered your head. A storm was coming.

1 How many coins did you pick up?

2 The tree tops grazed your flapping wings.

What does this sentence tell you about the way the trees tops touched your wings? Tick one.

The tree tops scratched your wings.

The tree tops hit your wings.

The tree tops touched your wings gently.

The tree tops didn't touch your wings.

3 Why did you fly down to sit on a lower branch?

The rain kept falling. A monkey hid under a tree. Birds returned to their nests. Fat worms wriggled across the soil. A butterfly fluttered on to your beak. Her wings were electric blue, edged with black. You blinked slowly, feeling confused.

“Bit wet out there, isn’t it?” said the blue butterfly. Then she began to cry. She was also a child and had to collect coins to get home too.
